OFFICE ACTION

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-18 are further rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Felsenthal 6,604,473 in view of Carter, Sr. et al. 2,478,458. Felsenthal teaches the devices claimed best seen in Figure 1, absent the drawer frame member slidably secured to second attachment tubes. Carter teaches a drawer frame member (see element 42) secured to attachment tubes (see element 24). To modify Felsenthal so that the flexible carriers (see 18) are slidably supported on the frame as taught by Carter for the purpose of providing easier access to the flexible carriers would have been obvious for one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention. The number of shelves (for the purpose of holding more articles), the specific means for attaching the flexible carriers to the frame (for the purpose of ease of removal), the manner in which the cross bar members are attached to the frame (rivet, bolt, etc....) would have been matters of choice of well known expedients in the art equally interchangeable and mechanically equivalent used and known by those of ordinary skill in the rack and shelving art. Note also the auxiliary brackets at 28 of Felsenthal for holding various articles. Note also casters 24.

RESPONSE TO APPLICANT'S REMARKS

On page 17 of applicant's remarks he asserts that none of the cited prior art teach or suggest all of the claimed limitations. Applicant's attention is drawn to the fact that not a single reference was relied upon to teach or suggest all of the claimed limitations but rather a combination of two references was relied upon and a 35 USC 103(a) rejection was made.

On page 18 of applicant's remarks, he asserts that the examiner does not cite any text of Carter et al. to support the motivation. It is not incumbent upon the examiner to cite text from a reference in order to support motivation. The examiner has provided the motivation "To modify Felsenthal so that the flexible carriers (see 18) are slidably supported on the frame as taught by Carter for the purpose of providing easier access to the flexible carriers would have been obvious for one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention."

On page 19 of applicant's remarks, he questions why one of ordinary skill in the art would attach the steel bars (24) of Carter et al. to the middle frame 16 of Felsenthal. The examiner has stated in the motivational statement this is done for the purpose of slidably supporting the trays for providing easier access to items stored thereon. The applicant further asserts this would be unsatisfactory for it's intended purpose. The examiner disagrees. Attaching steel bars to the inside of the middle frame would in no way prohibit adjustability.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

Art Unit: 3634

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
